A Word about the Artists and Exhibition

The Town and Country Art Show is a culmination of the work of conscientious and dedicated people across Illinois who have struggled to make the county, regional and state exhibitions the great success that they have been for the past 24 years. Without the participating artists, and without those who arrange the shows, the rest of us would not be able to enjoy the arts and crafts of our state to the extent that we have.

The enjoyment obtained from the Town and Country Show is something special, and it's important. We have some magnificent museums in Illinois where we can see the work of Renoir, Van Gogh, Matisse and other master artists both living and dead. And we are fortunate to be able to see such works because great artists speak with the kind of visual eloquence that amazes us, and makes us feel good about the things that a human being can do and the things he can think, feel, and imagine. But ideas, emotions, and dreams are not the exclusive property of famous artists. It could be argued, in fact, that many of the less fortunate among us possess little of anything else these days. Yet, as long as we have those thoughts, feelings and dreams we can be poor in dollars without being poor in spirit. And it is the marvelous spirit of the people of this state that one observes and enjoys in the Town and Country Show. It is evident, I think, in the images of sweetcorn, oil drums, apples, and eagles. It can be seen in pictures of men in overalls, women sewing and ducks on the wing. There are paintings and drawings of landscapes, eggs, flowers, and farmers working. There are images of farm auctions, children, and there are pieces of beautifully sculptured wood.

In short, the Town and Country Show helps us to appreciate bits and pieces of life that we otherwise might have missed. And those bits and pieces are frequently ones that we might not find in the Chicago Art Institute or the Krannert Museum. How many paintings of newsstands for example, have you seen in the Art Institute? Or, how many times have you seen an image of hayforks in any museum? Probably, it cannot be seen anywhere except here. And that's what makes the Town and Country Show so important.

Dedication

To J. B. Claar and M. S. Williams . . .

J. B. Claar

M. S. Williams

J. B. Claar and M. S. Williams have been staunch supporters in the growth and development of the Illinois Town and Country Art Show.

J. B. (Jack) Claar, Director of the Cooperative Extension Service and Associate Dean of the College of Agriculture, is a native of Watson, Illinois. He received his B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Illinois.

A recognized authority in the field of agricultural economics, farm management and continuing education, he worked with the Sangamon Valley Farm Business Farm Management (FBFM) service from 1947-51. He then became a member of the U of I College of Agriculture staff as farm-management specialist and state leader of FBFM fieldmen. In 1955, he was named chief of the farm-management Extension branch of the Federal Extension Service in Washington, and in 1958 he was appointed administrative field representative of the Federal Extension Service. He was associate director of Cooperative Extension in Illinois from 1960 to 1964 and was appointed director in April 1965. In 1973, he was appointed Associate Vice President for Public Service for the university system involving all campuses. During 1976, Claar spent three months on administrative leave studying development in the Open University of Great Britain and a similar program in Germany to assess how a multi-media approach involving remote instruction could be used in adult education in the United States. Claar has served as a consultant to U of I programs in Africa and India.

He retires from his Extension post this year, so that he may take a more active role in his public-service responsibilities.

M. S. (Moe) Williams joined the staff of the Illinois Cooperative Extension Service as assistant director in April 1963. A native of Orange County, North Carolina, he attended North Carolina State College, where he completed his B.S. and M.S. degrees. He received his Ph.D. from Purdue University.

From 1947 to 1954, he was a farm-management specialist with the North Carolina Extension Service. From 1956 to 1960, he was chief of agricultural economics for the National Plant Food Institute in Washington, D.C. He left this position to become director of economic research for the Sulphur Institute, Washington, D.C. During his three years with the Institute, he served in Rome for a six-month period as consultant to the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. He was made Associate Director of Illinois Extension in 1969 and became the administrative representative to the State Town and Country Art Show Committee.

Williams was always excited about the Town and Country Art Program. He especially enjoyed meeting and talking with the artists and watching their talents mature. On August 14, 1979, Moe Williams lost his battle with cancer.

Together, Jack Claar and Moe Williams have given valuable administrative support that has made Town and Country Art exhibitions an integral part of the Cooperative Extension Service programming in Illinois communities.

History Of Town And Country Amateur Art Exhibition

For 24 years the University of Illinois has recognized the work of amateur artists through a statewide program known today as the Town and Country State Amateur Art Exhibition.

The program began in 1956 as a rural arts show held in conjunction with the 55th Farm and Home Week. In the early years of the show, exhibitors were limited to residents of rural Illinois — the open country and towns of less than 10,000 population. The program has since been broadened to include all interested Illinois amateur artists.

Amateurs are classified as those who engage in art as a pastime without pursuing it as a professional career. Any person who receives half or more of his income from the sale of his art work or services, or who holds a degree in art from a professional school, is ineligible.

In its first 24 years, the Town and Country Amateur Art Exhibition has involved almost 96,247 amateur artists, with more than 167,000 entries at the county level, and 4,164 prize-winning works selected for the state show.

Credit for the idea of a rural arts show in Illinois goes to Hadley Read, head of the U. of I. Office of Agricultural Communications. Returning from the Minnesota Farm and Home Week in 1955, he brought a catalog of their Rural Artists exhibit. Read suggested to E. H. (Duke) Regnier, professor of rural recreation, that Illinois initiate a similar show for the Farm and Home Week.

Regnier and others agreed it was a good idea and thought the rural people of Illinois would be interested. At that time, some home advisers conducted programs to further the appreciation of arts and crafts. Also, the Cooperative Extension Service Program of Leisurecraft and Counseling Camp and the county craft schools could provide exhibitors.

The Division of University Extension was offering art courses conducted by Art Professor Walter M. Johnson. He accepted the idea enthusiastically as a way to unite the scattered efforts of educational, recreational, and personal pursuits in arts and crafts.

The proposal received the active support and cooperation of the College of Fine and Applied Arts. Dean A. S. Weller met with members of the art staff — Glenn Bradshaw, Nicholas Britsky, George Foster, Don Frith, and Johnson — and the proceedings were presented to Dean Louis B. Howard of the College of Agriculture.

Howard approved the idea and appointed a committee consisting of L. E. Anderson, D. A. Brown, Jessie Heathman, Dorothy O. Twardock and Regnier to plan a rural arts show for the 55th Farm and Home Week. Bradshaw and Foster were consultants.

The response for the exhibit was greater than anticipated. The 100 entries crowded the Agriculture Library in Mumford Hall on the U. of I. campus. The show included the works of 42 artists from 19 Illinois communities. The jury, consisting of Johnson, Bradshaw, Foster and Frith, selected 10 pieces to receive special citations. Highlighting the first exhibit were a number of gallery features consisting of demonstrations in ceramics by Frith, oil painting by Foster, watercolors by Bradshaw, and miniatures by Nella Van Wyk, a guest artist from Johannesburg, South Africa.

The response and enthusiasm of Farm and Home Week participants, faculty, and staff were great enough to insure its becoming a regular part of Farm and Home Week.

Although the last Farm and Home Week was held in 1962, the Art Exhibition continues as an independent unit of the U. of I.

From the Agriculture Library the state show moved to lower gym of the Women's Building (now the English Building), the Bevier Hall basement, then to the Architecture Gallery, and in 1968, the Town and Country State Amateur Art Exhibition opened in Lincoln Square, Urbana. Since then the Lincoln Square Management Association has cooperated in staging the show here, giving thousands the opportunity to view the work of amateur artists from throughout the state.

The Twenty-Fourth Annual Town and Country State Amateur Art Exhibition

STATE JURIST

Doyle Moore

Professor of Art and Design
University of Illinois

This state exhibition is the culmination of 77 county and district shows held during this year. These exhibits drew 9,015 entries from 4,028 artists in 68 counties. From these local shows, coordinated by county cooperative Extension staff members, 1,107 were selected for the 9 regional shows. A total of 768 pieces were exhibited in the regional exhibitions. From this group, 164 blue ribbon entries were selected for exhibition in the state show.

The College of Agriculture, Cooperative Extension Service, College of Fine and Applied Arts, College of Applied Life Studies and the Office of Continuing Education and Public Service sponsor the exhibit.

We are proud to announce that in the last two years the Town and Country Art Show Program has been nominated for the Governor's Award for the Arts. This recognition is due to the support and dedication of the amateur artists of Illinois.

We appreciate the enthusiastic cooperation of the Lincoln Square management in staging and publicizing the exhibition in the High Court Mall.

If you wish to purchase items in the exhibition, please contact the artists. Their addresses are listed in the catalog.

This year's show represents the best in Illinois amateur art. We hope you enjoy it.
